

Ipswich Remembers

Commemorating local stories
from the First World War

Calling all dance enthusiasts!

Ipswich Choral Society will mark the centenary of the end of the First World War, in collaboration with creative groups from Ipswich, combining music, dance, poetry and animation to create an immersive, thought-provoking and moving performance on Saturday 17 March 2018 in the iconic Ipswich Town Hall. We will learn about the personal stories of Ipswich people, both at home and on the front lines, leading up to and during wartime.

Independent Dance Artist and Choreographer Mary Davies has been commissioned by Ipswich Choral Society to direct the dance performance and is calling out for community dancers and enthusiasts of all ages and abilities to take part in this unique opportunity.

If you missed the Taster workshop on Sunday 12 November, don't worry - you can still be a part of this exciting project! If you are free to attend the dates below, we invite you to join us at the first stage of our creation.

Please note you will not be needed for the entirety of each weekend rehearsal.
